TWO LESSONS IN HISTORY.

[Original.]

I was sitting in the smoking room of an Atlantic liner when I fell into conversation with an English cockney. He boasted a great deal about the desirability of a royal family, a nobility, and, above all, decried America for having so little history behind her. He talked so offensively that I became irritated.

"We have something of a history," I said. "At least what we have is of interest. The discovery and settlement of the country, the colonial period, all teach a lesson of man's prowess and hardihood. Of course to an Englishman our Revolution could not be interesting."

"That was no fight," he said. "You couldn't expect England to send troops across the ocean in those days, when there wasn't nothin' but sailin' ships. I know all about your Revolution. There wasn't but one o' the generals that was 'alf decent—that fellow Burr that turned over West Point to its rightful owners."

"Burr didn't turn over West Point to the British. Arnold did that—Benedict Arnold."

"Well, now, I fancy I know some-thing about that as well as you. Do y' suppose I 'avent the education to take in a little bit of a story that don't take up a page o' the world's history? General Aaron Burr sent Major Andre with the papers."

"You mean General Arnold sent Major Andre with the papers."

"No, I don't. I mean General Aaron Burr."

A man sitting beside me turned and said to me:

"There's only one way to cure these Brits of their conceit, and that is to give them a chance to back their opinions with their money. If you'll offer to bet him a ten dollar bill that he's wrong, he must either take you or acknowledge that he's got the thing mixed."

"A pretty fool I'd be," said the cockney, "to bet and you the only one here to hold the stakes or leave the decision to. I ain't so bloody stupid as that."

"You don't need to leave it to me," said my partisan. "Any man aboard this ship who knows anything knows that Benedict Arnold was the traitor."

"Traitor!" the cockney cried.

"Oh, shut up! The gentleman bets you $10 you're wrong. Do you take him?"

"Yes, I'll take him, and I don't object to your holdin' the stakes, but I do object to your decidin' the bet."

My defender looked at me, with a wink, and I handed him $10, which the cockney covered.

"I'll go you another ten," said the stake holder.

"No," replied the cockney, apparently somewhat shaken by the man's confidence. "Two pound is enough to take out of a pair of greenhorns on a small thing like that."

Every man who came into the smoking room was asked who surrendered West Point—or tried to surrender it—to the British, and every man named Benedict Arnold. After four persons had thus decided the bet the cockney permitted the stake holder to turn over the money to me, which he did, to the cockney's apparent discomfiture. He was surly about it and vowed he'd get even with me before the end of the voyage. I was dissatisfied with myself for being led into taking the fellow's money, but the man who suggested the bet said it served him right and would teach him that there was American history, after all.

The evening before we reached port the cockney came to me with a novel bet on English history. He offered to bet me $50 that I couldn't name the kings and queens of England from Henry VIII. to Charles II. I to forfeit $100 for every error I made. Of course the forfeits were to my disadvantage, but there should be big odds in my opponent's favor. I couldn't very well decline to give the man his revenge, especially as he seemed very anxious for it, he offering to leave both the stakes and the decision to the man who had served as stake holder before.

This person came up while we were talking, and I could hardly refuse. We each deposited $50 and I an additional $200 for two possible errors, which were to be the limit paid for. I was to write out my statement and hand it to the stake holder. This I did from memory, since I had no books for reference. I named Edward VI., Mary, Elizabeth, James I., James II., Charles I., Charles II. and Cromwell as de facto king.

The decision of the referee was delayed till late at night; then it was handed me, written out on paper. It ran thus:

Lady Jane Grey, proclaimed queen, omitted. Cromwell, never proclaimed king and not so styled, put in. You lose the bet, $50, and pay forfeit for the two above errors, in all $150.

I saw no more of the cockney nor the friend who had so sympathetically seconded me in my first bet till the next morning, when I noticed them going down the gangplank arm in arm, laughing and chatting together, doubtless over the clever manner in which they had done me out of a balance of $240.

A Change.

"Well," complained the cranky woman, "I never met a man so hard to please as my husband."

"The idea!" exclaimed the spiteful Miss Knox. "How quickly men change. It was only a few years ago that he proposed to you."—Philadelphia Press.

Repudiation.

"Do you think that Bacon would have been content to leave his name off the Shakespearean plays if he wrote them?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Stormington Barnes. "If he saw them acted as I have seen them."—Washington Star.

Trouble Ahead For Him.

"I will wait for you on the other shore," she said just before she closed her eyes for the last time.

"Heavens!" he gasped. "What excuse can I make if I happen to be late?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Special Announcement Regarding the National Pure Food and Drug Law

We are pleased to announce that Foley's Honey and Tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and Drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. T. F. Laurin, Owl Drug Store.

Fifth avenue doctors deny that there is an epidemic of sneezing among the residents of that thoroughfare. It was probably the talk of the approaching wedding that the passers-by heard.

How to Avoid Pneumonia

You can avoid pneumonia and other serious results from a cold by taking Foley's Honey and Tar. It stops the cough and expels the cold from the system as it is mildly laxative. Refuse any but the genuine in the yellow package. T. F. Laurin, Owl Drug Store.

Simple Remedy For La Grippe

La grippe coughs are dangerous as they frequently develop into pneumonia. Foley's Honey and Tar not only stops the cough but heals and strengthens the lungs so that no serious results need be feared. The genuine Foley's Honey and Tar contains no harmful drugs and is in a yellow package. Refuse substitutes.

How to Avoid Appendicitis.

Most victims of appendicitis are those who are habitually constipated. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup cures chronic constipation by stimulating the liver and bowels and restores the natural action of the bowels. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does not nauseate or gripe and is mild and pleasant to take. Refuse substitutes. T. F. Laurin, Owl Drug Store.

It is announced that a verdict will be reached in the General Stoessel case this week. Why wait? The verdict was ready before the trial begun.

A Card

This is to certify that all druggists are authorized to refund your money if Foley's Honey and Tar fails to cure your cough or cold. It stops the cough, heals the lungs and prevents serious results from a cold. Cures la grippe coughs and prevents pneumonia and consumption. Contains no opiates. Refuse substitutes. T. F. Laurin, Owl Drug Store.
